"Country Life In Bohemia" is the title of the little "Jugy Chair-Journey" in the Burton Holmes series of Travel-Pictures, for release on May 29th, 1921. Bohemia,-- or Czechoslovakia, as it is now called,-- is a land of "Good-Fellow," not only the men but also the women. In no part of Europe are there to be found such healthy, well-fed, smiling, hospitable and jolly people, especially in the rural districts. Burton Holmes takes you to all sorts of quaint and picturesque little Bohemian towns and villages, there to enjoy the country life with this nation of natural-born hosts and hostesses. On your arrival you find them hard at work in the sugar-beet fields,-- digging, cutting, preparing beets for market and shipping them; even in the midst of their hardest labors, these big-hearted people find time to welcome their guests; you meet them face to face and get to know them personally. It is not always "hard work" in Bohemia; almost any excuse is sufficient to warrant the entire population taking a holiday; the sturdy girls and broad-shouldered men don their picturesque national costumes and dance for you and entertain you in many ways. Go where you will, there are no signs of war's havoc,-- no signs of food-shortage,-- nothing but comfort and plenty and good-natured, smiling happiness and hospitality, which of course is typical of what is known as "Bohemia" the world over.
